Amazing is, that this game gives me real sense of guilt...

After playing it for not even half an hour, the normal price suddenly seems more than fair to me and I had to write this review and give it my absolute approval in order to calm down that nasty feeling, that I took food off the mouth of some poor indie game developers child or something, considering the -33% sales price I got for this little gem.

I totally dig the sounddesign and the music and polished feeling of everything. The dancing vibe is strong in some of the tracks. Being able to resize and move the amazeball up and down is great for sitting as standing as for different room sizes. The game runs and feels great.

Everyone reading this and on the fence... there is really nothing you have to worry about.

Except maybe one tiny thing. I would have loved to have a way to drag the ball to the edge and maybe even a little outside of the play area. I got a sofa there and prefer to sit on that instead of a chair inside my play area, but I guess that is just me complaining on a very high level.

Else than that it seems perfect and you should totally consider buying if you haven't yet.

In case you own it already, and you know what I am talking about, then gift Super Amazeballs to a friend of your choice today, to make the first step in spreading love and harmony all over the world, forever.
